SUBJECT: Announcement of Awardees—2022 Department of Defense (DOD)
Diminishing Manufacturing Sources and Material Shortages (DMSMS) Program
Achievement Awards

Since 2007, the Defense Standardization Program Office and the DOD DMSMS Working Group have recognized individuals and organizations of the Military Departments and Defense Agencies who have made significant accomplishments through robust DMSMS management. We are pleased to announce the 2022 DMSMS award winners:

- Lifetime Achievement – Mr. Brent L. Bolner, Acquisition Logistics Lead, Army Futures Command, Long Range Precision Fire, Cross Functional Team
- Individual Achievement – Ms. Alissa (Rese) Meikus, Project Manager, US Army Combat Capabilities Development Command
- Team Achievement – Joint Air-to-Surface Standoff Missile (JASSM) Program Office, DMSMS Team

Award winners will be recognized at our annual award ceremony to be held during the Parts and Material Management Conference (PMMC) on Tuesday, February 7, 2023, in Savannah, GA. Ms. Robin Brown, OSD DMSMS and Parts Management Program Manager, will present the awards.

We encourage all award winners to attend the ceremony or to provide a representative. Please contact Ms. Robin Brown by email (robin.brown@dla.mil) or by telephone, (571) 767-1415, by Friday, January 13, 2023, to let her know who will be there to accept the awards.

I sincerely appreciate the hard work of your respective staffs in seeking and screening the nominations. Your award winners are clearly deserving of recognition. An announcement of all the 2022 winners will be included in the PMMC Program and in a future Defense Standardization Program Journal.
